OTHER:
Alyse Galvin is a mom, lifelong Alaskan, former small business owner, community leader, education advocate, and fighter for working families. A third generation Alaskan, Alyse's family came to Alaska in 1940, serving. Her father was a Teamster, working on the Trans-Alaska Pipeline. After completing her education outside, she brought her new husband back to Alaska to raise their family. Alyse and her family have been involved in Alaska public policy for years, both inside and outside government, working to improve life for Alaskans. Alyse has spent her life bringing people together, solving problems, fighting for our communities, and standing up for Alaska's future – and that's what she'll do in the Legislature.

STATEMENT:
I'm guided by a vision of Alaska as a strong, safe, and smart state where our children will want to raise their children.

My first priority is to help create the jobs of Alaska's future. That starts with supporting long-term, low-cost energy projects. Also, responsible natural resource development will continue to be central to Alaska's economy, especially as our nation weans off foreign oil sources. But we must take real and robust action to diversify and drive job growth into different industries across the state.

I believe that the strength of our economy begins with strong education for all Alaskans. Every child in Alaska deserves a first-rate education that helps them realize their potential, seize opportunity, and be able to go on to further education or qualify for a well-paying job leading to a career.

I believe that every woman has the basic human right to decide her healthcare decisions for herself, without interference from the government. I believe that everyone must have access to high-quality affordable healthcare. Also, women and men should have full access to reproductive health information and services.

The safety and security of all Alaska communities is a priority.

Finally, I believe the time is now for Alaska to develop a sustainable fiscal system and balanced budget.

I will bring an open heart, an open mind, and Alaskan values of community and cooperation to the Legislature to get things done.

-Alyse
